ART GALLERY OF NEW SOUTH WALES
CELEBRATING ABORIGINAL ART & CULTURE

Over the last thirty years, a magical flowering of Aboriginal art has occurred in Australia, captivating viewers around the world with astonishingly powerful artworks and creating a new art movement that could not have been imagined in the 1970s.

HETTI PERKINS

To celebrate art + soul, the ground-breaking three-part documentary series written and presented by Hetti Perkins and directed by Warwick Thornton for ABC Television, as well as the art + soul exhibition and the art + soul book, the Art Gallery of New South Wales will hold an Open Weekend over the October long weekend (2, 3, 4 October) focusing on Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander art.

More than 60 free events will be held over the 3-day long weekend with highlights including an opportunity to meet director Warwick Thornton and artists Gulumbu Yunupingu, Pedro Wonaeamirri, Yukultji Napangati, Yvonne Koolmatnie, Ricky Maynard, Judy Watson, Destiny Deacon, Lenie Namatjira, Ivy Pareroultja, Brenda L Croft and Richard Bell all of whom are featured in the documentary.

A special performance, called the Gurrir Gurrir, will take place for the first time in Sydney. It is a renowned Joonba (public ceremonial performance) depicting events associated with Cyclone Tracy and that sparked a cultural revolution recognised today in the Warmun art movement. Fourteen performers from the Warmun community in the East Kimberley will reveal the ‘dream visions’ received by artist Rover Thomas which inspired this ceremony.

Other highlights include a performance by Bangarra Dance Theatre, a bush spices cooking demonstration by celebrity chef, Mark Olive aka the ‘Black Olive’, music by Emma Donovan and singer songwriter duo Microwave Jenny, a weaving workshop with Ngarrindjeri artist Yvonne Koolmatnie, a shelling demonstration with La Perouse artist Esme Timbery, a desert culture workshop with women from Papunya Tula Artists, a stencil workshop with artist Reko Rennie and watercolour painting with Lenie Namatjira and Ivy Pareroultja.
