DAVID GONSKI AC
PRESIDENT
ART GALLERY OF NEW SOUTH WALES TRUST

FROM THE PRESIDENT

Welcome to the third issue of the Art Gallery of New South Wales Review publication, which celebrates our key achievements for 2017.

This past year, the second in my term as president of the Art Gallery of New South Wales Trust, has borne witness to genuinely inspiring exhibitions and programs that have resulted in 1.25 million visitors to the Gallery over the year and the strengthening of our art collection through significant acquisitions, gifts and bequests.

It was also a landmark year in the evolution of the Gallery, with the NSW Government announcing $244 million in funding for our expansion, the Sydney Modern Project, which will transform our institution into one of the world's great art museums with the addition of a new building designed by Pritzker Prize-winning architectural and design firm, SANAA.

I would here like to acknowledge formally the strong support of the NSW State Government for the Gallery, its exhibitions and programs, particularly the Hon Gladys Berejiklian MP, Premier of New South Wales; the Hon Don Harwin MLC, Minister for the Arts; the Hon Troy Grant MP, former Deputy Premier and Minister for the Arts; the Hon Stuart Ayres MP, former Minister for Trade, Tourism and Major Events; and the Hon Adam Marshall MP, Minister for Tourism and Major Events.

The funding collaboration between government and philanthropists for our expansion will be the largest in the history of Australian arts. We announced during the year a gift of $20 million to the Sydney Modern Project from the Susan and Isaac Wakil Foundation – the largest monetary gift in the Gallery's 146-year history.

During the year the Gallery also received five gifts of $5 million or more as well as early commitments of $1 million or more from a further twenty private donors. These donations have gone a long way in helping raise the $100 million in private funds for the construction of our new gallery building.

Strong partnerships are at the core of the Gallery's ethos and hence our achievements. The presentation of our 2017–18 summer blockbuster, Rembrandt and the Dutch golden age: masterpieces from the Rijksmuseum, was a collaboration with the Rijksmuseum in Amsterdam and part of Destination NSW's Sydney International Art Series, which brings the world's most outstanding exhibitions to Sydney. We also thank EY, our major sponsor, and our official airline partner Singapore Airlines for their support of this magnificent exhibition.

As the presenting partner of the Archibald, Wynne and Sulman Prizes, ANZ again allowed us to present this perennially popular annual exhibition in Sydney, and to tour the Archibald Prize to regional NSW and Victoria.

Other sponsors and partners – Aqualand, City of Sydney, Clemenger BBDO, Crestone Wealth Management, Glenfiddich, Herbert Smith Freehills, JCDcaux, J.P. Morgan, Macquarie Group, Macquarie University, McWilliam's Wines & Champagne Taittinger, Paspaley Pearls, Sofitel Sydney Wentworth, the Sydney Morning Herald, UBS, Valiant Events, and Variety – the Children's Charity – provided support to many of our most significant Gallery programs.

I would like to express my gratitude to the Crown Resorts Foundation and the Packer Family Foundation for their visionary grants, which have enabled the development and delivery of major projects and resources on art to inspire audiences at the Gallery and beyond its walls. Their support was acknowledged in 2017 with the unveiling of the Packer Family Gallery on lower level 1.

For their hard work and great assistance during 2017 I want to thank my fellow trustees, the Gallery's director, Dr Michael Brand and the Gallery's executive team. I also thank the Chair, Andrew Cameron, and the board of the Art Gallery of New South Wales Foundation and Brian Ladd and the board members of the Art Gallery of New South Wales Society for their help during 2017.

The Gallery is blessed with great support from its staff and volunteer workers; we thank each and every one of them.

I am looking forward to helping to steer the Gallery during the next exciting phase and to ensure that we continue to deliver exceptional art experiences.

MICHAEL BRAND
DIRECTOR
ART GALLERY OF NEW SOUTH WALES

FROM THE DIRECTOR

As 2017 drew to a close I attended the annual meeting of the Bizot Group in Mumbai, comprising the directors of 50 the world's top art museums. It's always inspiring and reassuring to meet with my colleagues from Australia and around the world to discuss the issues we are all facing, some unique to particular cities and countries, and some universal to art museums everywhere.

Meeting with my colleagues highlighted for me the strong position we're in here in Sydney to deliver a very exciting future for our art museum and for our audiences. While no museum is without its complex issues in the 21st century, art museums the world over remain vital institutions that set the agenda in matters of civic importance, and continue to be forces for good at this challenging time in history. It was wonderful to chat with directors, who are thinking about how they can best be 'global' while also being fully committed to cultural identities — yet not being nationalistic. As always, there is no better way for art museums to do this than to preserve, and project, the voice of artists.

Returning to the Gallery, 2017 has certainly been the most rewarding year for me since I came to the Gallery in 2012. We've enjoyed a record year of public and private financial support, and among the highest attendance figures in our recorded history. We've worked very hard to move closer to the realisation of our vision of an art museum that has been expanded and transformed by 2021 for the people of NSW.

There are so many organisations and people across the private and public sectors who support the Gallery to achieve its vision for its future — certainly far too many to mention in a foreword for this publication. But I would like to acknowledge the incredible work of two groups of people in particular: the Gallery staff and our colleagues at the Art Gallery Society of New South Wales, and all our volunteers who also do a fantastic job supporting and enhancing the work of our staff.

We have an incredibly skilled and dedicated staff team who are well-placed to deliver for the Gallery the most comprehensive expansion in our 150-year history. They are also individuals who, with a combination of enthusiasm, energy and a good dose of resilience, are taking up the opportunities and meeting all the challenges an expansion project of this scale brings.

‘...2017 has certainly been the most rewarding year for me since I came to the Gallery in 2012. We’ve enjoyed a record year of public and private financial support, and among the highest attendance figures in our recorded history.’

In 2021, when our new building is due for completion, we’ll have many more of the greatest works in our state collection on public display, along with the best temporary exhibitions from around the world and new site-specific commissions, both within the building and in the surrounding landscape.

With our expansion, Sydney will gain a new cultural meeting place – a place where ideas, artists and people intersect and culture is enriched by art and exchange in one of the world’s most beautiful urban settings. Amidst the Opera House, the Royal Botanic Garden, Sydney Living Museums, Hyde Park and the Australian Museum, the expanded Art Gallery of New South Wales will build on the deep Indigenous history of our site to create a vibrant cultural hub for the city’s eastern cultural precinct. We’ll also build upon the long history of artistic innovation and leadership for which the Gallery is renowned, and re-imagine how art is displayed and experienced in Australia.

Our transformation embraces both opportunities and challenges to ensure an exciting future for this art museum. In the words of Los Angeles-based artist Doug Aitkin, ‘Our culture is not this thing to be seen from a distance. We need to be embracing the friction of it all – that is where the energy is.’

Sydney Modern Project

‘ The possibilities of art are endless, and the Sydney Modern Project will enable the Gallery to fully embrace and celebrate all its creative possibilities. ’

It has been a truly momentous year in the history of the Art Gallery of New South Wales, with significant milestones reached in realising our expansion and transformation vision, the Sydney Modern Project.

In an extraordinary show of support for the Gallery and its future, the NSW Government announced $244 million in funding for the expansion of the Gallery in June. This announcement heralded a new era for the Gallery, with this funding marking the most significant expansion of the Gallery to date and one of the biggest shows of support for a cultural infrastructure project in NSW.

Always envisioned as a partnership between government and philanthropists, it was the commitment of our leadership donors who made generous pledges towards the $100 million Art Gallery of New South Wales Campaign for the expansion that was instrumental in securing government funding. The total combined public and private funding for the $344 million Sydney Modern Project will make it an unsurpassed public-private partnership in the Australian arts. More information about the Campaign and our donors is on page 71.

Building on previous consultation since May 2015, the Gallery undertook an extensive community consultation program over the last 12 months on the evolved design concept of the expansion. This included a number of exclusive briefings, forums and information sessions held across NSW.

SANAA's design for our new building responds to the unique project site with a series of interlocked pavilions that cascade towards Sydney Harbour. The new standalone building will be linked by a public art garden to the existing and much-loved historical building. It will create an expanded art journey for visitors in one of the most beautiful cultural precincts, with exceptional indoor and outdoor spaces for art in all its evolving forms, and will enable us to embrace a variety of curatorial ideas and learning practices.

The year ended with another important milestone – the submission of the State Significant Development Application to the NSW Department of Planning and Environment for the expansion. The feedback received as part of the public exhibition of the Development Application will help shape progress towards detailed design development of our new building, as well as inform the transformation of the Gallery into one of the world's great art museums.

Due for completion in 2021 for our 150th anniversary, the expanded Gallery will provide Australia with a vibrant new cultural hub where people, ideas, art, architecture and landscape come together, strengthening links with local, regional and international communities.

EXHIBITION HIGHLIGHTS

The Gallery is committed to displaying engaging exhibitions drawn from its collections, as well as significant loan exhibitions. Here are some highlights from 2017.

MAJOR EXHIBITIONS

Rembrandt and the Dutch golden age: masterpieces from the Rijksmuseum

11 Nov 2017 – 18 Feb 2018

Our major summer show was the first exhibition at the Gallery devoted to the greatest Dutch painters of the 17th century and the flourishing artistic culture of the time. Drawn from the Rijksmuseum, Amsterdam, it presented a section focused on the work of Rembrandt and masterpieces such as Vermeer's beguiling Woman reading a letter c1663, one of only 35 surviving paintings by the revered 'master of Delft'.

Robert Mapplethorpe: the perfect medium 27 Oct 2017 – 4 Mar 2018

Robert Mapplethorpe (1946–89) is among the most influential visual artists of late 20th-century America. This exhibition featured over 200 works from still lifes to portraits and figure studies that chart his involvement in New York's gay scene. Organised by the Los Angeles County Museum of Art and the J Paul Getty Museum, in collaboration with the Robert Mapplethorpe Foundation and the Art Gallery of New South Wales.

24 Jun 2017 – 7 Jan 2018

This exhibition brought together painting, sculpture, video and installation works from ten contemporary Filipino artists, accompanied by textiles and sculptural objects from the Gallery's collection. Passion and procession was part of the Bayanihan Philippine Art Project, a collaboration between the Gallery, Blacktown Arts Centre, Mosman Art Gallery, Peacock Gallery and Auburn Arts Studio and Campbelltown Arts Centre in association with Museums & Galleries of NSW, to celebrate the art and culture of the Philippines.

O'Keeffe, Preston, Cossington
Smith: making modernism
1 Jul – 2 Oct 2017

This groundbreaking exhibition showcased the distinct modernist artistic visions of American artist Georgia O'Keeffe and celebrated Australian artists, Margaret Preston and Grace Cossington Smith. Presented by the Heide Museum of Modern Art and the Art Gallery of New South Wales in partnership with the Georgia O'Keeffe Museum, Santa Fe and the Queensland Art Gallery, the exhibition included the largest survey of O'Keeffe's work to visit Australia.

Mikala Dwyer: a shape of thought
26 Aug 2017 – 4 Feb 2018

A shape of thought interweaved new and recent work from Mikala Dwyer, one of Australia's most inventive artists. Dwyer transformed four of our contemporary galleries, floating 150 silver balloons high above the gallery floor, installing an elaborate suspension of fabric shapes held aloft by stockings, and building a large circular sculptural gathering that includes crystal-like Perspex structures.

John Olsen: the you beaut country
10 Mar – 12 Jun 2017

This major retrospective revealed the energetic and distinctive painting style of one of Australia's greatest living artists. Presented in association with the National Gallery of Victoria, this was the most comprehensive exhibition ever mounted on John Olsen's work, spanning from the 1960s to the present day.

Adman: Warhol before pop
25 Feb – 28 May 2017

A collaboration between the Gallery and The Andy Warhol Museum in Pittsburgh, Adman explored the early phase of Andy Warhol's art practice and his career in advertising as a commercial illustrator in the 1950s. Including 300 objects – from rare drawings and photographs to vintage advertisements, artist books and recreated department store window displays – it was the most comprehensive exhibition dedicated to Warhol's early career in more than 25 years.

COLLECTION WORKS ON LOAN

In 2017, 395 works from the Gallery's collection went on loan to 72 regional, national and international institutions. We were particularly pleased to collaborate with the Heide Museum of Modern Art, the Georgia O'Keeffe Museum, Santa Fe and the Queensland Art Gallery on the touring exhibition O'Keeffe, Preston, Cossington Smith: making modernism for which we lent 56 paintings, photographs and prints.

This year also saw the conclusion of the first international exhibition of Australian impressionist art at the National Gallery, London, which the Gallery collaborated on and lent 13 of the 41 works on display. Entitled Australia's impressionists, this highly successful exhibition included Charles Conder's Departure of the Orient – Circular Quay 1888, Arthur Streeton's Fire's on 1891, Tom Roberts's Holiday sketch at Coogee 1888 and John Russell's Madame Sisley on the banks of the Loing at Moret 1887.

In September, we lent 27 of our much-loved old master paintings from the 16th to 19th centuries to the Hazelhurst Arts Centre. This is the first time many of these important European paintings have been shown together outside of the Gallery and their reception has been enthusiastic.

We were also delighted to have our David Hockney painting A closer winter tunnel, February–March 2006 included in the artist's landmark retrospective organised by Tate, London, which travelled to the Centre Pompidou in Paris and the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York. This work was sent along with Hockney's Portrait of an artist (pool with two figures) 1972, a long-term loan from the Lewis Collection. The Gallery's Ernst Ludwig Kirchner painting Three bathers 1913 was also a highlight of the artist's retrospective at the Kunsthau Zürich and the exhibition SPOT ON: 1937. The 'degenerate art' campaign in Düsseldorf at the Museum Kunstpalast.

This constantly regenerating digital garden is a favourite with school kids. They rush to touch it, to interact with it. However, the work's beauty lies in its subtlety. It blooms in acknowledgment of your presence, but if you get too close the petals shed in a blaze of white light. Reflecting the delicate balance between people and the environment, it is proof that digital technology can make breathtaking art.

TOM LANGLANDS
TECHNICAL ASSISTANT,
CONSERVATION

One of my first jobs as a teenager was working as a studio assistant to artist Michael Johnson. Back in the 1990s, Johnson was painting massive canvases with paint straight out of the tube. There were hundreds of tubes strewn across the floor and my job was reuniting tube lids with the correct tube, actually an important lesson in colour identification for me as a budding artist. Sofala was stored there and I always dug it out to look at it. I wanted to buy it one day, but was beaten to it!

I still remember the incredulous rush of joy I felt on discovering this work delicately suspended high on the wall in the Asian gallery. SYDNEY MODERN PROJECT

When I relocated from London to Sydney, I found it quite hard to settle in at first. Visiting the Gallery and admiring Claude Lorrain's beautiful Pastoral landscape was a great source of comfort for me at the time. The sense of tranquillity that emanates from this idealised scene soothes the mind. What I particularly like about this painting is that, although it is very small compared to Lorrain's later works, it still broadcasts his incomparable mastery of light. Truly wonderful.

With the Rijksmuseum treasures being installed in the building, my thoughts turn to the Dutch artists in the Gallery's collection. Matthys Gerbers' painting practice in the last 30 years has matured in skill and scale. I cannot think of his work without remembering the Union Street artist-run space in the 1980s run by Jeff Gibson and Jelle van den Berg, my other favourite Dutch-Australian contemporary artist. Slavedriver is also a gift from Pamela Hansford, the brilliant scholar and art history lecturer who so formed my experience at COFA. What a formidable group of people and an important part of Sydney culture.

HEAD OF BUILDING SERVICES

When I first started working at the Gallery in the early 1990s, this large work was in storage with a long rip from top to bottom that had been caused by water damage in the 1940s or '50s. Funds were given to the Gallery for it to be repaired in the early 2000s, and the repairs were done in Court 11 for all to see. Anyone looking at this painting today would not believe how badly it had been damaged. Every time I walk past it, I'm in awe of not only the painting but also the amazing repair work by the conservator.

Painted when Sydney Nolan was only 24 and at the start of his years at Heide, this playful abstraction already manifests an uncomplicated but distilled vitality that I think defines all his work. Luna Park is so striking, with its stark black grid of St Kilda's big dipper cutting through a gelato-coloured patchwork sky. It's an early jewel of Australian modernism.

I've always been taken with the opulence of art nouveau, so when I discovered Sydney Long's uniquely Australian take on the genre, I was smitten. I find this painting to be almost painfully beautiful: it's haunting, dreamlike and resonant with sadness. The title – Sadder than a single star that sets at twilight in a land of reeds – seems to be in itself a strange and lovely kind of poem.

CONSERVATION

It has been an exceptionally busy year for the Conservation staff, who have assessed and prepared approximately 2300 works in the collection as new acquisitions, outward loans and for internal exhibitions, as well as providing tours, floor talks, lectures, conference papers and workshops.

This year, master craftsman David Butler retired from his role as reproduction frame maker after 30 years making frames for the Gallery's collection. In the lead-up to his retirement, David provided a three-year traineeship for Tom Langlands, generously funded by the Nelson Meers Foundation and the Clitheroe Foundation.

Conservation Benefactors have supported the treatment of key works from the Gallery's Pacific art collection, Brett Whiteley's iconic outdoor sculpture Almost once 1968, 1991, Arthur Streeton's Villers Bretonneux 1918 and its frame and October 1967 by Dick Watkins. The EC Pohl Foundation supported the conservation of The prospector 1889 by Julian Ashton, and the Women's Art Group supported the conservation of audio-visual archives in the National Art Archive.

The Gallery's outdoor bronze sculptures, The offerings of war 1923 and The offerings of peace 1923 by English sculptor Gilbert Bayes were the subject of a major conservation project funded by the Minister's Stonework Program (MSP) and managed by Public Works

Advisory, NSW Department of Finance, Services & Innovation (DFSI). The project team included Heritage Asset Advisory DFSI, Heritage Stoneworks DFSI, DRP Stonemasonry, International Conservation Services and the Gallery.

The Australian Research Council Linkage project, A National Framework for Managing Malignant Plastics in Museum Collections, also began this year with the Gallery partnering with University of Melbourne, Museums Victoria, Museum of Applied Arts and Sciences, Queensland Museum, South Australian Museum, Flinders University and University of Technology Sydney.

BRETT WHITELEY STUDIO

The Brett Whiteley Studio in Surry Hills was the workplace and home of renowned Australian artist Brett Whiteley (1939–92) from 1988 until his death. The space opened to the public in 1995, one year after it was purchased by the NSW Government. It was managed by the Gallery for 20 years before officially becoming owned by the Gallery in February 2015.

The Studio allows visitors to experience the atmosphere of Whiteley's working space, with the artist's paintings, art materials, collection of art books and objects that inspired him, alongside a graffiti wall covered with quotes and images.

The changing exhibition program draws on the artist's paintings, drawings, sculpture and graphics borrowed from the Brett Whiteley Studio collection, the Gallery and private collections. Free admission is made possible by J.P. Morgan, principal sponsor of the Studio.

In 2017, three exhibitions were presented at the studio: Naked, West of the divide and Beach. The touring exhibition Brett Whiteley: other places (somewhere else) opened at the Cairns Regional Gallery in April and continued to the regional galleries in Caboolture, Tweed and Gosford. Comprising 40 works, this exhibition offered a rare opportunity to view some of Whiteley's most intimate and personal works completed during his many travels to London, Paris, New York, the Asia Pacific region and Queensland. The Gallery wishes to thank Wendy Whiteley for her ongoing support as curator for all Whiteley exhibitions in the studio and on tour.

Further highlights from the year include the premiere of Whiteley, a feature-length documentary directed by James Bogle, hosted at the St George OpenAir Cinema in the Royal Botanic Garden in February, with 2500 people in attendance. A giant wall mural inspired by Whiteley's work was also created by Melbourne-born, Los Angeles-based street art duo DABSMYLA in Surry Hills for the ABC iView series The wanderers.

Brett Whiteley Travelling Art Scholarship

Sally Anderson from Sydney, NSW, won the 2017 Brett Whiteley Travelling Art Scholarship. This year the Brett Whiteley Foundation increased the prize from $30 000 to $40 000 for additional travel in Europe. Anderson also received a three-month residency at the Cité Internationale des Arts in Paris, which is administered by the Gallery.

The annual scholarship is awarded to a young Australian painter aged 20–30 years. It was established by the late Beryl Whiteley in 1999 to commemorate the profound effect international travel and study had on her son, Brett, who won the Italian Government Travelling Art Scholarship at the age of 20.

SELECTED ART PRIZES

The annual Bulgari Art Award supports contemporary Australian painting. Sponsored by Bulgari, the award consists of $50 000 for the acquisition of a painting and a residency for the artist in Italy valued at $30 000. The total award of $80 000 makes it one of the most valuable art awards in Australia.

Tomislav Nikolic was the recipient of the 2017 Bulgari Art Award for his painting Just before the most significant events, people are particularly prone to deny the possibilities of the future. (cause all we're doing is learning how to die) 2014–17. The chromatic intensity that Nikolic has built using hundreds of layers of paint results in an incredible and deeply physical experience, and we are delighted to receive it into our collection.

In memory of the late Eva Breuer, an art dealer who made a significant contribution to Australian art in the 1980s and '90s, The Breuer Foundation has established an annual $25 000 scholarship to be awarded to an Australian female artist under 35 years for the purpose of travel and study in Paris.

The scholarship is awarded to one of the winners of the Gallery's Cité Internationale des Arts, Paris, residencies. Bundanoon-based painter Clara Adolphs was the recipient of the Eva Breuer Travelling Art Scholarship in 2017.

IDEAS

THOUGHT LEADERSHIP

Our highly respected staff engage in discourse at a national and international level. In November, director Michael Brand attended the meeting of the prestigious International Group of Organisers of Large-scale Exhibitions (known as the Bizot Group) in Mumbai. It was established by Irène Bizot in 1992 to facilitate the exchange of ideas and exhibitions between major international art museums; membership is by invitation only. In 2017, attendees shared their thoughts on the role and relevance of museums in a rapidly changing world.

Jacque Riddell, director of public engagement, contributed to the establishment of the new Sydney Culture Network and was elected its interim deputy chair.

Kirstin Mattson, head of the Sydney Modern Project campaign, developed and presented panel discussions focusing on marketing-development partnerships, bequests, and the culture of philanthropy for the NSW chapter of the Cultural Development Collective, a professional group for fundraisers in the arts and culture sector.

Mark Mahony, prospect researcher for the Sydney Modern Project campaign, was a keynote speaker at the 2017 Association of Professional Researchers for Advancement Australia conference (held at Deakin University, Melbourne) on the topic, 'Prospect research in Australia: higher education and beyond'.

Danielle Gullotta, access programs producer, presented research findings on the positive benefits of engaging with art and art-making for people living with dementia as part of Dementia Awareness Month in September alongside Emeritus Professor Steven Sabat from Georgetown University USA and Dr Gail Kenning from UTS. The event was held at the Gallery with an audience of 300.

In July, Aboriginal and Torres Strait Island art archivist Shari Lett and programs producer Amanda Peacock travelled to Canada to present on the Gallery's Djamu Indigenous education program at the World Indigenous People's Conference on Education in Toronto. They also met with key staff at 19 organisations across Canada to research how Indigenous artists and communities in Canada engage with galleries, museums and cultural organisations.

Steven Miller, head of our National Art Archive and Capon Research Library, was elected by IFLA (the International Federation of Library Associations and Institutions) as the representative on their arts board from Australasia and the Pacific. He is organising a conference on Islamic resources in world art museums and libraries at the Museum of Islamic Arts in Kuala Lumpur as part of IFLA's world congress in Malaysia in August 2018.

In April, the Gallery hosted the first part of the International Exhibition Organisers (IEO) conference, which was attended by Charlotte Cox, head of exhibitions, and Diarne Wiercinski, exhibition manager. The final session was hosted by the National Gallery of Victoria. The IEO was established in 1999 to raise awareness and resolve shared issues pertaining to the complex administrative aspects of art exhibition organisation and coordination.

In January, Natalie Seiz, curator of Asian art, was the only representative from a non-European or American institution invited to the third Curatorial Exchange Program for Japanese Art Specialists in US and European Museums, supported by the Agency for Cultural Affairs, Government of Japan.

Nude live, a unique collaboration between the Gallery and Sydney Dance Company produced in association with Sydney Festival for the Gallery's major 2016–17 summer exhibition Nude: art from the Tate collection, was awarded an 'Imagine' award from Museums & Galleries of NSW.

On 28 June 2017 the Gallery's longstanding and much-loved curator of film, Robert Herbert, passed away. For 18 years, Robert offered his encyclopaedic knowledge of cinema's histories through film programs that made a huge contribution to the Gallery and the arts generally in Sydney. The city, and Australian film itself, is much diminished without Robert in his Domain Theatre, but the Gallery is committed to preserving and building upon his enormous legacy.

NATIONAL ART ARCHIVE AND CAPON RESEARCH LIBRARY

A major event in 2017 for the Gallery's National Art Archive and Capon Research Library was the conference of Asia Pacific art librarians, which we hosted over three days. Eighty delegates attended, representing museum, art school and university libraries in Australia, New Zealand, Hong Kong and the United States.

Our library collections were enriched with over 1300 donations of books and catalogues. Another 190 were acquired through exchange and 170 were purchased. Researchers using our resources increased, with just under 5000 people visiting the archive and library in person, while others used our online (600) or phone (380) reference services.

Archive exhibition loans were made to Artspace and Mosman Art Gallery in Sydney, Tweed River Regional Gallery, the Murray Art Museum (Albury), the Museum and Art Galleries of the Northern Territory (Darwin), and Neon Parc (Melbourne).

Shari Lett, archivist of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander collections, worked with assistant curator Coby Edgar to curate an important exhibition on photographer Mervyn Bishop, which highlighted material in the artist's archive of over 6000 images.

SUPPORTING OUR STAFF

Each year the Gallery awards scholarships and fellowships to selected staff in order to develop their professional skills and expertise through study, research and travel within their field at museums and galleries nationally and internationally.

Art Gallery of New South Wales & Art Gallery Society Staff Scholarship Program 2017–18

Four staff members received an Art Gallery of New South Wales & Art Gallery Society Staff Scholarship in 2017, including Josephine Touma, manager of public programs, Rebecca Allport, retail manager, and Sarah Bunn, conservator. The recipients plan to use their scholarship funding in 2018.

Karen Hancock, graphic designer, also received a scholarship to be trained and mentored in service design by leading Sydney-based agency Meld Studios. Service design is a human-centred design methodology useful for aligning an organisation with the needs of its audiences, encouraging innovation and facilitating organisational change. In October, Hancock worked within a project team at Meld Studios on a ticketing discovery project for the Gallery. It was a valuable opportunity to develop skills in qualitative research, data synthesis, current and future-state service mapping, and most importantly, to see the Gallery through visitors' eyes.

Edmund Capon Fellowship

The Edmund Capon Fellowship is an exchange program that aims to foster a closer relationship with Asian art museums. The Balnaves Foundation plays a leading role in supporting the fellowship. Yuki Kawakami, youth programs producer, travelled to Singapore, Japan, Taiwan and Hong Kong in June 2017. Her research focused on two areas: how art museums, galleries and arts organisations engage youth audiences through education and public programs; and investigating the use of creative and participatory spaces in new landmark museums in Asia. She met more than 40 staff across 20 museums, galleries and arts organisations and used the opportunity to share programs developed by the Gallery's Learning and Participation team. The findings from the research stimulated new thinking around approaches to audience engagement, especially in the development of the Gallery's new youth-led program.

PUBLISHING HIGHLIGHTS

Each year the Gallery publishes high-quality titles based on its collection, exhibitions and research. Most are available nationally and internationally.

The Gallery's 2017 highlights include Adman: Warhol before pop edited by Gallery curator Nicholas Chambers and co-published with The Andy Warhol Museum in Pittsburgh. Richly illustrated from the Warhol Museum collection and archive, the book includes essays by Warhol scholars and other experts in their fields and provides insights into the beginning of Warhol's career, from his award-winning work as a commercial illustrator through to his first, little-known exhibitions.

Victorian watercolours, drawn from the Gallery's collection and written by curator Peter Raissis, includes 80 artworks by more than 70 artists that represent the glory of British watercolours from the Victorian period. Raissis explores the social, cultural and technical background to watercolour painting in 19th-century Victorian Britain, as well as the reception and appreciation of the medium both in Britain and Australia.

The sixth edition of Let's face it: the history of the Archibald Prize brought the evolution of this unique annual prize for portraiture up to date; and a new book on the Gallery's history and collection provided a much-requested memento of a visit to the Gallery.

Another title, Unpainting, was added to the Contemporary Project series. Written by Nicholas Chambers with Lisa Catt, through the work of 26 artists it draws attention to the Gallery's extraordinary holdings of abstract paintings, focusing on unconventional and experimental approaches to the medium from the 1960s to the present day.

The Gallery's summer show – Rembrandt and the Dutch golden age: masterpieces from the Rijksmuseum – was supported by a richly illustrated publication written by Gerdien Wuestman from the Rijksmuseum.

In 2017 the Gallery also collaborated with two other Sydney arts venues – the MCA Australia and Carriageworks – for the inaugural exhibition and the accompanying catalogue for The National 2017: new Australian art with the MCA.

AUDIENCE

PUBLIC AND COMMUNITY PROGRAMS

From playful art-making experiences to thought-provoking talks, our programs are designed to engage diverse audiences with visiting exhibitions and the collection.

Creative partnerships formed a key focus for programming in 2017. The Gallery led an award-winning artistic collaboration in partnership with the Sydney Dance Company and Sydney Festival, Nude live, presenting a unique dance work in response to artworks in the Nude exhibition. Another highlight collaboration was the late-night Queer Art After Hours produced with the Sydney Gay and Lesbian Mardi Gras.

The new Liveable Communities project, a research partnership with University of Technology Sydney and the Black Dog Institute, engaged people living with dementia in an artist-led, art-making experience.

We worked closely with community groups throughout our local community, Greater Sydney and regional NSW to make art more accessible. This included a program for people at risk of homelessness produced in association with Artspace and the Ozanam Learning Centre in Woolloomooloo and a new partnership with Information and Cultural Exchange (ICE) in Parramatta with family programs for new migrant and refugee families, a mentorship program for musicians on the autism spectrum, and a youth digital engagement program.

The Ability Options Front Up Emerge mentorship program for artists with disability entered its second year.

A contemporary Filipino fashion parade, Habol Ilonggo, was co-produced with the Philippine Consulate General, the Philippine Department of Tourism and Filipino Lesbian and Gay Community (and Friends) (FLAGCOM).

EDUCATION PROGRAMS

The Gallery offers a range of learning programs for primary, secondary and tertiary students and teachers. These programs are delivered by a dedicated team of professional artist educators and volunteer children's guides. In 2017, the Teacher Collective (a new advisory group) was formed to provide user insights on education programming.

The Art Pathways outreach arts education project in Western Sydney was expanded for 2017–18 with Art Pathways Plus, focusing on deepening community engagement through a partnership with Casula Powerhouse Arts Centre and low-SES schools in the Liverpool area. Art Pathways is generously supported by the Packer Family Foundation and the Crown Resorts Foundation.

A new program was developed in consultation with Aboriginal elders to support Indigenous students at Reiby Juvenile Justice Centre, connecting youth offenders with art and culture and strengthening their sense of identity and belonging.

Starting with Art, supported by Variety – the Children's Charity, engaged K–12 students with sensory, intellectual and physical disability in innovative workshops that draw upon the Gallery's collection.

Supported by the Campbell Edwards Trust, the Djamu Indigenous art education program offered Indigenous students the opportunity to work with artists and develop their own art-making skills. The senior program included a photography workshop with artist Mervyn Bishop at the National Art School, resulting in an exhibition of student work at the Gallery.

In partnership with the Arts Unit, Department of Education, the Gallery delivered the HOME: Aboriginal art from NSW outreach program in collaboration with regional galleries in Dubbo, Wagga Wagga and Albury. The Gallery also delivered accredited teacher professional learning programs in collaboration with regional gallery staff and linked to touring exhibitions.

The Gallery is the principal venue for the annual ARTEXPRESS exhibition of artworks by NSW Higher School Certificate students. This year 38 student artworks were exhibited in the John Kaldor Family gallery.

MEMBERS

The Art Gallery Society of New South Wales cares for the members of the Gallery, organises a lively program of events and helps raise funds for the acquisition of art for the collection. The Society has had an exciting year, hosting 423 gallery events attended by 43 397 members and guests.

The popular World Art Tours program offered 14 tours in 2017 to diverse locations such as Russia, Hong Kong, New York, Uzbekistan, Bhutan and Jordan.

The Art Appreciation course continues to draw large audiences with a broad range of speakers. The program theme, 'Site Specific: the power of place', explored many art locations in Australia and overseas.

The Society funded the purchase of a Charles Conder painting for the collection. Rainy day 1888 depicts the Chinese market gardens in La Perouse and was once in the collection of a former Society member, the late James Fairfax AC.

A staff re-structure resulted in the appointment of an assistant director, Peter Lin, in July. Lin has previously worked at Artbank and the MCA, and his considerable administrative skills will firstly be applied to the introduction of a new customer relationship management system for the Society.

The Members Lounge has been refreshed with the construction of a new reception desk and the temporary installation of works by Cressida Campbell from the Gallery collection.

Look magazine continued to connect members to art, events and ideas at the Gallery. During 2017 it remained a much-loved benefit of membership, as well as going on sale in the Gallery shop. Showcasing exhibitions, acquisitions and collection artists, Look published stories by Gallery and Society staff, as well as contributors, including Drusilla Modjeska and Patti Smith. In June, editor John Saxby travelled to Amsterdam, courtesy of exhibition partner Singapore Airlines, to interview Rijksmuseum director Taco Dibbits ahead of the November opening of Rembrandt and the Dutch golden age: masterpieces from the Rijksmuseum.

ACCESS AND INCLUSION INITIATIVES

In November, the Gallery launched its Disability Inclusion Action Plan 2017–20, reinforcing our commitment to the inclusion and representation of people with disability. We want to ensure that all members of the community have an opportunity to experience our collection, exhibitions, programs and facilities. The plan highlights our progress but also outlines actions for improvement as there is ongoing work to be done.

Our plan was disability-led with an extensive community consultation period. We worked closely with consultant and disability advocate Sarah Hoboult and the team at Accessible Arts for guidance on the internal and external consultation underpinning the plan. We are confident from this consultation that our plan will move towards a more accessible and welcoming experience and culture at the Gallery as we strive to remove barriers and provide opportunities for employment, participation and representation. The Disability Inclusion Action Plan 2017–20, can be accessed on the Gallery's website.

An Indigenous action plan is also being developed to reflect the Gallery's commitment to deeply supporting and celebrating Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people, perspectives and cultural practices to realise positive and necessary change.

TOURING PROGRAMS

The Gallery had a highly successful touring program in 2017, with exhibitions travelling across NSW, Queensland, Victoria and internationally to Christchurch, New Zealand.

The 2017 program included the ever-popular Archibald Prize regional tour, with the 2016 prize travelling to NSW venues and the 2017 prize launching at the Geelong Gallery in October. O'Keeffe, Preston, Cossington Smith: making modernism opened at the Queensland Art Gallery in Brisbane in March and Brett Whiteley: west of the divide opened at Benalla Art Gallery in February, while Brett Whiteley: other places (somewhere else) toured to Cairns, Caboolture, Murwillumbah and Gosford. The Landmarks tour opened at the Blue Mountains Cultural Centre in January, then travelled to Tamworth in June and Albury in September. The 2016 Dobell Australian Drawing Biennial was displayed at the Western Plains Cultural Centre, Dubbo, in May. Henri Matisse: Jazz travelled to Christchurch Art Gallery, New Zealand, in August. European old masters: 16th–19th century was displayed at the Hazelhurst Arts Centre from September to December.

These exhibitions were enjoyed by over 293 500 visitors.

DIGITAL PROGRAMS

The Gallery's rich and dynamic digital engagement program reaches different audience groups via multiple digital platforms.

Highlights for 2017 included a redesign of the Gallery Channel, with a new look that splits the content into 'Gallery video' and 'Gallery audio', making it easier to navigate and enjoy both mediums via mobile devices.

We continued to collect interviews with local artists to share on our digital channels and retain in our archives. This year exhibiting artists Mikala Dwyer and Janet Laurence as well as Archibald winner Mitch Cairns were filmed in both the Gallery and their studios.

A dedicated website for The National: new Australian art exhibition was launched in February. The website was developed by the Gallery and MCA digital teams and will become a significant resource for users around the world on contemporary Australian art. It represents a comprehensive record of the artists' participation in the inaugural biennial, including artist biographies and portraits, essays and photos of the artworks. The site includes audio commentary on every exhibiting artist with supporting Auslan video. There is also a series of short documentary films on 16 of the artists and their projects.

A suite of online digital content was created to support Rembrandt and the Dutch golden age: masterpieces from the Rijksmuseum.

The Adman: Warhol before pop exhibition had a digital dimension that proved very popular with the visiting public. Eight of Andy Warhol's fragile sketchbooks and two artist books were on display, each behind glass and set to a certain page. Strategically placed touch screens invited visitors to 'flip' through Warhol's sketchbooks alongside the objects themselves. The high-resolution images allowed visitors to enlarge individual drawings and explore close details.

For the first time, entrants could enter the Young Archie competition online this year. For the 2017 competition we received over 2000 entries in the six-week period.

A suite of digital content was produced to support the summer show Rembrandt and the Dutch golden age, including an online feast of extra material on golden age art, fashion, food and religion. Also, a beautifully animated video explainer was produced, revealing just what made Dutch art from this period so special, and what made it a 'golden age'.

Government project grants

Australia Council for the Arts

Gallery staff members Shari Lett and Amanda Peacock secured a joint career development grant to deliver a paper at the World Indigenous Peoples Conference on Education in Toronto, followed by strategic research at cultural centres in Canada.

City of Sydney

The City of Sydney funded RAW, a two-year creative digital skills development project for disengaged youth from Woolloomooloo and surrounding suburbs, that the Gallery will deliver in partnership with Artspace and Save the Children and seed local creative community engagement.

BEQUESTS

Many of the Gallery's special collections have been built with bequests, including Mervyn Horton and the contemporary international art collection; Ken & Yasuko Myer and the Japanese art collection; Ed & Goldie Sternberg and the Chinese collections; and Mollie Gowing and the Aboriginal art collection.

Both the Gallery and the Gallery's Foundation received significant gifts from the estate of donors in 2017.

The Gil and Shay Docking Drawing Fund received over $2.5 million from the proceeds of the sale of the Docking's house in Paddington. This fund was established at the Gallery in 1998 following the death of Shay Docking, for the purpose of funding the purchase of Australian drawings for the permanent collection. It is the Gallery's largest fund for works on paper.

John Fairlie Cunningham's bequest to the Gallery's Foundation, already the largest in the Gallery's history, received a further substantial distribution following the sale of his Mount Wilson property. With his and other recent bequests, the Foundation now has over $61 million in funds under investment.

James Fairfax AC, who died in early 2017, left the Gallery seven works including a Sir Peter Paul Rubens oil on panel and two Albrecht Dürer engravings. As one of the Gallery's most generous benefactors during his lifetime, this bequest makes Fairfax the Gallery's most significant benefactor to date.

ART GALLERY OF NEW SOUTH WALES FOUNDATION

The addition to the Gallery's collection of New Zealand artist Michael Parekowhai's 2.7-metre tall stainless-steel sculpture The English Channel 2015 was a highlight for the year. The work was funded by Peter Weiss AO, a former Gallery Foundation trustee. Foundation members were introduced to the work in March at a special dinner held to honour those members who have supported the Foundation for 25 years or more. The members who attended the dinner were presented with a limited edition etching by our trustee, artist Ben Quilty, and the following people were acknowledged:

Lenore Adamson & the late Ross Adamson; Antoinette Albert; Timothy Allen & the late Prue Allen; Kate & Bill Anderson; Christine Bishop & the late Alan Bishop; Peter & Margaret Cary; Charles Curran AC & Eva Curran; Rowena Danziger AM & Ken Coles AM; Jane Douglass AM & the late Gordon Douglass; Peter & Robyn Flick; Rosemary Foot AO; Brian France AM & Philippa France; Judith Friend OAM & the late Jim Friend; Neville Grace; John Grant AM & the late Inge Grant; Ginny & Leslie Green; Ian & Rosemary Harper; Judy Joye; Ray & Diana Kidd; Elizabeth & Philip Ramsden; Alison Sandow & the late Max Sandow AM; Penelope Seidler AM & the late Harry Seidler; Vivienne Sharpe & Tim McCormick; Gene Sherman AM & Brian Sherman AM; Gay Voss; Isaac Wakil AO & Susan Wakil AO; Peter Weiss AO; Carolyn Ward & the late Des Ward; Ray Wilson OAM & the late James Agapitos OAM.

The majority of Foundation supporters direct their annual donation to acquisition groups such as Australian art, Aboriginal art or Asian art. During 2017, an increase in both numbers of supporters and levels of support was seen within most acquisition groups.

Philanthropic support was also forthcoming for some of the less obvious areas, such as staff development. Benefactors paid for senior conservator Paula Dredge to spend three months at the Nolan Foundation in Wales, for example. Benefactors also funded new headsets for use by volunteer guides while giving tours.

Special projects also attracted added support, such as funding of a collaboration between the Gallery and the Australian Brandenburg Orchestra during the Sydney Festival, Rembrandt live.

ART GALLERY OF NEW SOUTH WALES CAMPAIGN

The Art Gallery of New South Wales Campaign has raised $88 million to support the Gallery's major expansion. More than 30 leadership donors, including long-standing members and trustees, as well as new supporters, have been attracted to the Sydney Modern Project's vision.

In June, the Gallery announced the commitment of $20 million by the Susan and Isaac Wakil Foundation, and we are now delighted to recognise the donors who have committed $5 million or more:

- the Ainsworth family, whose pledge comprises gifts made by Gallery

trustee Geoff Ainsworth and Jo Featherstone, Len Ainsworth, Mark Ainsworth, and Paul and Valeria Ainsworth

- the Lowy family, including former Board presidents Sir Frank Lowy AC and Steven Lowy AM
- Kerr Neilson, a well-known supporter of the arts and culture in Sydney
- Mark Nelson, Board vice-president and chair of the campaign committee, with his wife Louise Nelson
- Gretel Packer, Gallery trustee and campaign committee member, also a key supporter of Learning and Participation programs at the Gallery.

In addition to these gifts, we have received early commitments of $1 million or more from a further 20 private donors, as well as a number of other generous gifts. The Gallery will be honoured to recognise these donors in the new building designed by SANAA. We are also grateful to our donors who have chosen to remain anonymous.

The campaign seeks to raise a total of $100 million in philanthropic funding in addition to the generous commitment made by the NSW Government. The Gallery plans to invite broader participation in the campaign with a public launch in 2018.

CORPORATE PARTNERS

The Gallery provides high-calibre exhibitions, programs and events due to the strong support of its family of sponsors and partners. These partners share the Gallery's commitment to culture and are a vital part of our vision for the future. Partnerships provide brand alignment with the Gallery and its program of exhibitions, unrivalled VIP hospitality opportunities and a platform for high-impact brand activations to engage with Gallery audiences.

In October, the Gallery launched another new corporate initiative with an expansion into the luxury brands sector. The Luxury Syndicate is a new membership program offering prestige brands the opportunity to demonstrate their commitment to the arts and cultural sector. Membership fees assist in the development of exhibitions, acquisitions, education and public programs, conservation, emerging artists and permanent collections.

We gratefully acknowledge the support of all our sponsors and partners, who enabled us to raise $4.2 million through sponsorship in 2016–17.

GALLERY SHOP

The Gallery Shop had a strong year, cementing its place as a globally significant cultural retailer by showcasing unique Australian books and giftware.

This year, the shop launched a popular events program featuring talks by bestselling authors Henry Carroll and Kate Forsyth, and an all-day party for Love Your Bookshop Day.

The shop continued fostering partnerships with Australian designers and makers, including exclusive collaborations with Sydney print specialist Think Positive and Melbourne knitwear icon Otto and Spike. A partnership with ABC Classics saw the release of five music CDs celebrating the Gallery's collection, and new relationships were initiated with Indigenous art collectives Tjanpi Desert Weavers, Marnin Studio and Buku-Larrnggay Mulka Centre.

The Gallery Shop's dedicated Instagram account @artgalleryofnswshop was launched in November to promote new arrivals and to open up conversations with customers and the wider community.

Every purchase supports the Art Gallery of New South Wales.

FUNCTIONS

The clients and type of events held in 2017 have been diverse, forming a thriving and dynamic part of the Gallery's day to day business. We have hosted conferences for quantum physicists, fashion week parades, furniture launches, meditation seminars, and bridge-building competitions for high school students, to name a few.

For our guests, it is always a special experience to attend an event while also enjoying a private viewing of some of our most popular exhibitions. The Archibald, Wynne and Sulman prizes are the most attractive, with events held each day for our corporate partners and clients.

Weddings at the Gallery have continued to grow in number and we have looked after more than 20 celebrations this year – each a joyous occasion.

The Gallery's exclusive caterer is Matt Moran's group, CHISWICK at the Gallery. Appointed in 2014, the partnership continues to grow and offers an excellent level of service and food.

PEOPLE

ARTISTS

The Gallery supports artists in many fields of practice and at all levels of their career, from students to established senior artists. We strive to make the Gallery a place that brings artists together with each other, their audiences and other arts professionals. These are just some of the myriad ways in which artists contributed to the life of the Gallery this year:

Mervyn Bishop captivated a huge Art After Hours audience during NAIDOC week with an old-fashioned 'slide night' reflecting on his extraordinary career in photography.

Janet Laurence created an installation, The matter of the masters 2017, in response to the exhibition Rembrandt and the Dutch golden age: masterpieces from the Rijksmuseum, exploring artists' materials and conservation science.

Eisa Jocson presented a challenging and energetic performance lecture, reflecting on her recent work exploring gender, sexuality and the body in Filipino culture.

Marakit Santiago led a series of workshops with both children and adults to create a collaborative, temporary artwork in the exhibition Passion and procession.

Artists including Judy Watson, Gunybi Ganambarr, Yinimala Gumana and Yhonnie Scarce mentored young Indigenous students as part of the Djamu education program.

Marian Abboud opened up about her artistic practice to students from Western Sydney for the Art Pathways program.

Abdul Abdullah was the guest judge for the annual Young Archie children's portraiture prize.

In June, we partnered with Create NSW to host a panel discussion and workshop for emerging and mid-career artists to explore the challenges of maintaining an artistic practice, as part of the Vivid Ideas festival.

Ten artists were awarded residencies at the Gallery's studios in the Cité Internationale des Arts, Paris, to further their professional development. These included the winners of the Brett Whiteley Travelling Art Scholarship (p 39) and the Eva Breuer Travelling Art Scholarship (p 40).

VOLUNTEERS

The Gallery's main volunteer groups – the guides and Task Force – continued the long-standing tradition of supporting the Gallery and Art Gallery Society in 2017. Our volunteers play an important role at the Gallery and are appreciated both internally across all divisions as well as externally by our general visitors, sponsors, corporate partners and members. In 2017, the Gallery collaborated with the Taronga Training Institute to identify training and development needs for volunteers, and were successful in our application and implementation of fully funded training from the NSW Smart and Skilled program.

Our 138 volunteer guides include adult guides, children's guides, access guides and community ambassadors. In addition to offering tours for our diverse audience, our guides also provide translation services and take tours in Cantonese, Japanese, Korean and Mandarin.

The Task Force of 125 people provides support for a range of services at the Gallery, including attending the member's desk and lounge, and assisting with programs, exhibitions and functions.

2018 preview

2018 EXHIBITIONS PREVIEW

As regularly as some of the world's most celebrated works of art arrive at the Gallery – think of Rembrandt's Self-portrait as the Apostle Paul, Vermeer's Woman reading a letter, The lady and the unicorn tapestries and the photographs of Robert Mapplethorpe – so too do the works of Australia's greatest artists.

In 2018 the Gallery hosts a major exhibition of Australian impressionist painter John Russell (a close friend of Van Gogh and Rodin), and another of the drawings of Brett Whiteley.

In addition, drawn from public and private collections across Australia, we exhibit Nonggirnga Marawili, one of our leading Indigenous artists. A Tony Tuckson exhibition highlights this artist's significant contribution to Australian abstract art.

In March 2018, we welcome the international art world with the Biennale of Sydney, and in October works by modern masters, including Matisse, Picasso, Kandinsky and Cézanne, will arrive from the Hermitage in St Petersburg for our summer blockbuster exhibition.

ARTEXPRESS 2018 26 Jan – 25 Apr 2018

The annual ARTEXPRESS exhibition is one of the most dynamic and popular at the Gallery, showcasing outstanding student artworks developed for the art-making component of the previous year's HSC examination in Visual Arts.

Ewa Pachucka: Arcadia 3 Mar – 29 Apr 2018

This is a rare opportunity to see Ewa Pachucka's installation Arcadia: landscape and bodies 1972–77. This extraordinary work, one of Australia's most significant examples of 1970s fibre art, was first exhibited at the Gallery in 1978 and has been newly conserved for this display. Crocheted using natural and synthetic fibres, the sprawling environment of tiered rock forms is inhabited by life-size nude female figures and their animal companions.

The lady and the unicorn
10 Feb – 24 Jun 2018

The lady and the unicorn tapestry series is one of the masterpieces of medieval European art. Revered as a national treasure in France, the 15th-century 'Mona Lisa of the Middle Ages', from Paris' Musée de Cluny – Musée national du Moyen Âge, will be making its exclusive appearance in Australia at the Gallery. This is a rare opportunity to experience the beauty, scale and intricacy of a work that has captivated viewers across the centuries.

Proudly sponsored by the NSW Government through its tourism and major events agency, Destination NSW.

21st Biennale of Sydney Superposition: equilibrium and engagement

16 Mar – 11 Jun 2018

Curated by Mami Kataoka, the 21st Biennale uses the quantum mechanics term 'superposition' as a metaphor to link the notions of equilibrium and engagement and provides us with insights into the world today. As one of eight participating venues across Sydney, the Gallery will host exceptional new projects by a diverse selection of celebrated international artists. To mark its 45th anniversary, the exhibition will also reflect on the Biennale's rich history through a display of its archive of encounters with art from around the world.

Henry VR

12 May – 9 Sept 2018

The Gallery's c1540 portrait of Henry VIII returns to public display for the first time since 1962 to star in this virtual-reality installation. An immersive experience takes viewers deep inside this Tudor painting to explore the king's portrait, the workshop of artists who created it, and the pioneering conservation research and treatment that helped reveal it. In partnership with UNSW Art & Design.

Hold still: the photographic performance

12 May – 29 Jul 2018

This collection exhibition addresses the way the camera turns any subject into a performer and any scenario into a theatrical act, examining the gestures we habitually adopt when facing the lens. Featuring artists who exploit and exaggerate the posture (or imposture) of the portrait sitter, Hold still presents incisive commentary about the way photography pervades contemporary life.

Archibald, Wynne and Sulman Prizes

12 May – 9 Sept 2018

Archibald, Wynne and Sulman Prizes is an annual exhibition eagerly anticipated by artists and audiences alike. The Archibald Prize is Australia's favourite art prize and one of its most prestigious. Awarded to the best portrait painting, it's a who's who of Australian culture. The Wynne Prize is awarded to the best landscape painting of Australian scenery, or figure sculpture, while the Sulman Prize is given to the best subject painting, genre painting or mural project. The Young Archie is for budding artists aged 5–18.

Dobell Australian Drawing Biennial 2018

7 Jul – 21 Oct 2018

The 2018 Dobell Australian Drawing Biennial is the third in a series of curated exhibitions that present the work of contemporary Australian artists whose practice is connected by their commitment to the art of drawing.

Fearless: contemporary South Asian art

21 July 2018 – 2019

This is the Gallery's first exhibition to focus on women artists with ties to South Asia. Including major works by Nalini Malani, Pushpamala N and Clare Arni, Adeela Suleman, Alia Syed and Shahzia Sikander, it explores individual interpretations of politics and nationalism alongside the consequences of shifting borders. Each artist interrogates connections to diverse cultures and geographies, fearlessly questioning historical events, personal memories and their own identity.

Spacemakers and roomshakers:
installations from the collection
14 Jul – 21 Oct 2018

From a room full of vibrant colour to a forest of fake-fur monuments, Spacemakers and roomshakers brings together some of the most immersive and expansive artworks in the Gallery's collection. Employing light, sound, fabric, air and spices, these artworks also use the space of the gallery as a medium to be filled, tested, stretched, altered and above all energised.

John Russell: Australia's French
impressionist
21 Jul – 11 Nov 2018

Australian painter John Russell (1858–1930) was an active participant in French late 19th-century avant-garde art movements. He was a close friend of Van Gogh and Rodin, dined with Monet and taught impressionist colour theory to Matisse. Yet, despite the efforts of his cousin Thea Proctor, he remains little known. This major survey presents the breadth of Russell's art from his studies in London and Paris, through impressionism and experimentation with pure colour, to his later fauve-like luminous watercolours.

Anne Dangar: ceramics from Moly-Sabata

11 Aug – 28 Oct 2018

Australian modernist painter and potter Anne Dangar (1885–1951), was a central figure in the Moly-Sabata artists commune established by cubist artists Albert Gleizes and Juliette Roche near Lyon in France. The Gallery has acquired from the Fondation Albert Gleizes a significant collection of Dangar's innovative ceramics which fuse traditional pottery techniques with cubist designs. Many of the ceramics will be displayed in Australia for the first time.

Nonggirnga Marawili 3 Nov 2018 – 24 Feb 2019

Nonggirnga Marawili is one of today's leading Aboriginal artists. From northern Arnhem Land, Marawili's works capture the dynamism of a living landscape, radically transformed and re-imagined to realise a very personal artistic vision. Drawn from public and private collections, the exhibition reflects the span of Marawili's career including prints, bark paintings and larrakitj (hollow logs) with a focus on her work from the last five years.

William Kentridge 8 Sept 2018 – 2019

Best known for his evocative stop-motion videos of charcoal drawings, South African artist William Kentridge is among the most powerful voices in art today. Alongside Kentridge works in the Gallery's collection, this exhibition features one of the artist's most ambitious works I am not me, the horse is not mine 2008 – an immersive, eight-screen video installation based on Dimitri Shostakovich's 1928 opera, The nose.

Judy Watson
10 Nov 2018 – 2019

Judy Watson's diverse and innovative art practice spans almost 40 years. Together with her matrilineal connection to country – the Waanyi lands of the Gulf region – her works reveal an intimate, earthy and visceral experience of the land as a silent witness and repository of memory for past events.

Tony Tuckson

Tony Tuckson (1921–73) was one of Australia's earliest and most influential abstract expressionist artists. He was also a curator, with an active interest in Aboriginal art and culture, and deputy director of the Art Gallery of New South Wales. Including over 80 paintings and works on paper, ranging from the late 1950s to early 1970s, this exhibition will explore the spectacular development and diversity of Tuckson's practice and will highlight his extraordinary contribution to abstract art in Australia.

'Melanesian art' redux

In 1966, a ground-breaking exhibition called Melanesian art opened at the Gallery. Curated by Tony Tuckson, with over 370 works from Papua New Guinea, Solomon Islands, New Caledonia, Vanuatu and Western New Guinea, it was the most comprehensive exhibition of Pacific art held in an Australian gallery. To celebrate Tuckson's achievement, a selection of works from the Gallery's collection will be displayed.

Brett Whiteley: drawing is everything

8 Dec 2018 – 2019

Brett Whiteley, one of the most celebrated Australian painters of the 20th century, was also one of our most gifted draughtsmen. Drawing lay at the very heart of everything he did – from painting to sculpture to prints – and was the one discipline to which he returned throughout his life as a source of personal solace and artistic reinvention. This is the first major museum exhibition to focus on the central place of drawing in Whiteley's work, from his extraordinary early abstract landscapes to lyrical interiors and sinuous nudes.
